Poster Notes

Sometimes the stereotypical homeless image of someone pushing a shopping cart is true. But many times it is not. This man lives on the streets in Edmonton and has had to find the best way to make sure his house stays safe. So, he takes it with him wherever he goes, everyday. Without a permanent address, daily life consists of walking to find new places of shelter to help him stay relatively safe. Where would you put all your belongings if you had no real home?
